Alaska Chamber Announces Finalists for the Alaska state finals of the 2024 National Civics Bee

Anchorage, AK —The Alaska Chamber will host the Alaska state finals of the 2024 National Civics Bee on June 13th at 11am, organized in partnership with The Civic Trust of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce Foundation. The National Civics Bee is an initiative aimed at encouraging more young Americans to engage in civics and contribute to their communities. The winner of Alaska’s Civics Bee competition will advance to the national competition in Washington, D.C.

“The Alaska Chamber is proud to be the official partner for the National Civics Bee in Alaska, for the inaugural state competition. Promoting greater civic knowledge in Alaska will result in more informed and active citizens,” said Kati Capozzi, President and CEO of the Alaska Chamber.

Middle school students from across Alaska will take part in the state-level competition. Finalists will participate in a live quiz event and answer questions from judges to test their civic knowledge.

2024 Alaska State Finalists for the National Civics Bee:

Denah Barr, White Mountain School
Emily Brubaker, Romig Middle School
Liam Cuddy, Romig Middle School
Finley Foster, Ravenwood Elementary School
Alexander Hippler, Holy Rosary Academy
Jagger Price, Ravenwood Elementary School
Linzi Shoemaker, IDEA Home School
McKenna Smith, White Mountain School
Jackson Wells, Tri Valley School

About National Civics Bee

The National Civics Bee, a program of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce Foundation's Civic Trust, is an annual competition aimed at improving civics education and literacy among middle school students, their families, and communities. The National Civics Bee helps elevate civics as a national priority through a network of state and local chambers across the country. The National Civics Bee is made possible through the generous support of its founding partner, the Daniels Fund, and other funders.

About the Alaska Chamber
